Dear John Lindstrom:

In response to your telephone request conveyed to my secretary for comment regarding Chief Justice Taylor's assertions about me, attached for your and the public's information is:

- 1) Correspondent Skubick's email informing me of Chief Justice Taylor's comments and requesting my response, and
- 2) A copy of my response to Mr. Skubick's inquiry.

My response to Mr. Skubick is what I have to say on the subject.

I would be glad for Gongwer to print my short response.

I hope this is helpful to you.

Sincerely,
Justice Elizabeth A. Weaver

Hi Justice Weaver: Hope all is well. I did an TV exit interview with the Chief Justice last week and he had some things to say about you. I am writing to see if you want to offer any response. I am doing a column on his remarks and need to have it to the papers by tomorrow..let me know if you want to add anything to his remarks which I will summarize here: He says you went to "war" against the court after they told you they would no longer support you for Chief Justice. He says you were "not up to the job" and he thought you were "incompetent." He contends you spent the rest of the time trying to "get even." "Betty had been injured. Her ego had been injured on the Chief Justice business. There was no dealing with her." He adds your voting pattern changed in order to "get even." "I think she really has some problems and she made it such a difficult place to work." "I was a great and personal friend...and "never did her a disservice." Thanks for taking this under advisement. Best to you..Tim.

Justice Weaver's 11/17/08 Response to Mr. Skubick's Inquiry

In response to your email concerning your interview with Chief Justice Taylor, here is my statement:

Obviously, I do not agree with Chief Justice Taylor's assertions against me, my abilities, and public service. Such false accusations are nothing new. They are unworthy of Chief Justice Taylor and those who repeat them.

Those interested may find information about me, my work, and my almost 34 years of public service as a judge on my personally-funded website:
www.justiceweaver.com.

I wish Chief Justice Taylor well.
